CEO of the Company

I am a Website Designer & Developer, simply using HTML to build block of Web pages, PHP for collecting form data, CSS language to make those Web pages pretty, and XML the markup language for programming the Web.

I have programming skills (known as web programmer), which means I am not only the architect of how a page will appear on the Internet but also implement my own designs through programming. I can be called part artist, part writer, and part computer expert.
